

After Shock! - what happens after what comes next?

The skills and structures needed for a head start in the new world of work

This presentation or workshop helps companies prepare for the upturn, and take advantage of the turbulent years that lie ahead. The recession has been more than just an economic downturn - it has changed the world of work - forever. It is now more necessary than ever to have some means of anticipating - and responding to - what an uncertain future holds. This session will show you and your team how to do just that. It starts with a focus on five key drivers of disruptive change in your industry: Technology, Institutional upheaval, changing Demographics, the Environment and shifting Societal values. These are the TIDES of change! It then outline the key skills and structures required for success in the new world of work.

It is a guaranteed paradigm shaker and conversation starter as you and your team develop your strategies for the next 3-5 years! Complete with relevant and interesting facts, case studies and multi-media clips, the content is drawn from our team's wide international experience and research. The content challenges commonly held assumptions about business and how the world works. Consequently, it invites strategic insights, understanding and discussion, and is laced with a practicality and a gently rebuking humour that keeps participants thoroughly engaged throughout.

“After Shock - what happens after what comes next?” is presented by Barrie Bramley. Barrie is a founding partner of TomorrowToday, where he consults with individuals and companies, assisting them to understand what happens when a changing business environment meets a changing worker. Barrie speaks to well over 100 companies and organisations every year.

Contact Details

For more information about this presentation, or to book Barrie for your next conference or event, please contact Jude Foulston on +27 (72) 8590412 or e-mail her at jude@tomorrowtoday.co.za